

National Security Policy

PADMN 6965-001

spring 2012

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course will examine the principle players involved in the formation and implementation of national security policy including the Executive Branch of the federal government, the Departments of Defense and State, the U.S. Congress, and defense contractors. Students will become familiar with the strategic threat analysis that drives national security policy, defense spending, and the process used to procure weapons and systems to meet that threat. Students will also be able to discuss key issues and strategies related to the use of the military industrial and intelligence complexes in the implementation of national security policy.
